There is a huge ancient hourglass made of animal skins, acorns plop through the waist of the hourglass one by CATFISH in geometric patterns. An underground stream feeds the pool of water and then flows into a huge underground crevasse that on occasion emits a LOW RUMBLE.

Sissy sticks out her thumb, even though there is no traffic.

When I was younger, I hitchhiked one hundred and twenty-seven hours without stopping, without food or sleep, crossed the continent twice in six days, cooled my thumbs in both oceans and caught rides after midnight on unlighted highways.

MAN

Whoeee!

SISSY

As I developed, however, I grew more concerned with subtleties and nuances of style. Time in terms of M.P.H. no longer interested me. I began to hitchhike in something akin to geological time: slow, ancient, vast. When I am really moving, stopping car after car after car, moving so freely, so clearly, so delicately that even the sex maniacs and the cops can only blink and let me pass, then I embody the rhythms of the universe. I am in a state of grace.

The man listening to her takes another toke on his joint.

Sissy is talking to a trucker as they pass down the road.

SISSY

Right off, I don't remember how old I was when I found out I was part Indian. My mamma's family, a lot of them, had lived out West, in the Dakotas, and one of them had married a squaw. Siwash tribe. My pleasure in Indianhood and my passion for car travel might be incongruous if not mutually exclusive..... After all, the first car that ever stopped for me had been named in honor of the great chief of the Ottawa: Pontiac.....

(peruses the ad layouts on the wall) from nineteen sixty-eight through nineteen seventy. You've always smelled so nice. Like a little sister. The irony has just killed me. You, the Dew Girl, one of the few girls who doesn't need Dew. I loath the stink of females! They are so sweet the way God made them, then they start fooling around with men and soon they're stinking. Like rotten mushrooms, like an excessively chlorinated swimming pool, like a tuna fish's retirement party. They all stink. From the Queen of England to Bonanza Jellybean, they stink.

SISSY

Your ranch?

THE COUNTESS

Oh my dear yes, I bought a little ranch out West, sort of a tribute to the women of America who have cooperated with me in eliminating their odor by using my vaginal products, Dew spray mist and Yoni Yum spray powder. A tax write-off, actually.

clenched
The Countess hands Sissy an article that she reads in her fist.

SISSY

The Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday female deodorant sprays may cause such harmful reactions as blisters, burns and rashes. Although the FDA judges that the reported reactions are not sufficient to justify removal of these products from the market, they are sufficient to warrant the proposed mandatory label warnings.

THE COUNTESS

Shit O dear, that's enough to make me asthmatic. The nerve of those twits. What do they know about female odor? Don't interrupt. Here's my concept. My ranch out West? It's a beauty ranch. Oh, it's got a few head of cattle for atmosphere and tax purposes. But it's a beauty ranch, a place where unhappy women -- divorcees and widows, mainly -- can go to lose weight, remove wrinkles, change their hair styles and pretty themselves up for the next disappointment. My ranch is named the Rubber Rose, after the Rubber Rose douche bag, my own invention, and bless its little red bladder, the most popular douche bag in the world. So get this. It's on the migratory flight path of the whooping cranes. The last flock of wild whooping cranes left in existence. Well, these cranes stop off at my little pond -- Siwash Lake, it's called -- twice a year, autumn and spring, and spend a few days each time, resting up, eating, doing whatever whooping cranes do. I've never seen them, understand, but I hear they're magnificent. Very big specimens -- I mean, huge mothers -- and white as snow, to coin a phrase, except for black tips on their wings and tail feathers, and bright red heads. Now, whooping cranes, in case you didn't know it, are noted for their mating dance. It's just the wildest show in nature. It's probably the reason why birdwatching used to be so popular with old maids and deacons. Picture these rare, beautiful, gigantic birds in full dance -- leaping six feet off the mud, arching their backs, flapping their wings, strutting low to the ground. Dears, it's overwhelming. And picture the birds doing their sex dance on TV. Right there on the home screen, creation's most elaborate sex ritual -- yet clean and pure enough to suit the Pope. With lovely Sissy Hankshaw in the foreground. In a white gown, red hood attached, and big feathery sleeves trimmed in black. In a very subdued imitation of the female whooping crane, she dance/walks over to a large nest in which there sits a can of Yoni Yum. And a can of Dew. Off-camera, a string quartet is playing Debussy. A sensuous voice is reading a few poetic lines about courtship and love. Are you starting to get it? Doesn't it make the hair on your neck stand up and applaud? My very goodness gracious! Grandiose, lyrical, erotic and Girl Scout-oriented; you can't top it. I've hired a crew of experts from Walt Disney Studios, the best wildlife cinematographers around. You're my eternal favorite. Princess Grace herself couldn't be better, not even if she had your personality which she doesn't; Anyway, dear, I'm out of photography now and into water colors. Ah how circuitous conversation is! We're back at the beginning. The exact man I've wanted you to meet is my artist the watercolorist.

Sissy dares a sip of Red Ripple.

SISSY

If you don't want me to pose for him, why do you want me to meet him?

THE COUNTESS

Purely personal. I believe you might enjoy one another.

SISSY

But Countess...

THE COUNTESS

Now, now. Don't get exasperated. I realize that you've always avoided all but the most rudimentary involvements with men, and I might add, you've been wise. Heterosexual relationships seem to lead only to marriage. For men, marriage is a matter of efficient logistics: The male gets his food, bed, laundry, TV, pussy, offspring and creature comforts all under one roof, where he doesn't have to dissipate his psychic energy thinking about them too much, then he is free to go out and fight the battles of life, which is what existence is all about. But for a woman marriage is surrender.

THE COUNTESS

But here you are, still a virgin -- you are virginal yet, aren't you?

SISSY

Why, yes, technically. Jack Kerouac and I came awfully close, but he was afraid of me, I think...

THE COUNTESS

Yes, well, what I'm getting at is that there comes a time when it is psychologically impossible for a woman to lose her virginity. She can't wait too long, you know. Now, there's no reason why you must lose yours. I mean, just ponder it a bit, that's all.

SISSY

(her brow spaghettied)
What makes you think this watercolorist and I would develop a romantic relationship?

THE COUNTESS

I can't be certain that you would.
But what have you got to lose?

SISSY

Well, okay. I'll try it. I don't see the point in it, but I'll try it.
Just for you. It's kind of silly, actually, me going out with an artist in New York City. However...

THE COUNTESS

Good, good, good... you'll enjoy it, you'll see. Julian is a gentleman.

Sissy gets out of bed and begins to dress.

JULIAN

SISSY

Getting dressed. I've got to go.

JULIAN

But I don't want you to leave. Please stay. We can go to dinner. I owe you a dinner. And tonight... we can... really make love.

EXT. CITY DAWN

Sissy trembles while she kisses her thumbs.

THE COUNTESS

So she left town. Well, that shouldn't surprise you. Leaving town is what Sissy is all about. But tell me, how did she strike you?

Julian is on the other end of the phone.

JULIAN

Extraordinary!

THE COUNTESS

She's obviously that. Jesus! Which would you rather have, a million dollars or one of Sissy's thumbs full of pennies?

JULIAN

Oh, you! I'm not talking about her hands. They're difficult to ignore, I confess, but I'm speaking of her whole being. Her whole being is extraordinary. The way she talks, for example. She's so articulate.

THE COUNTESS

It's high time you realized, honey babe, that a woman doesn't have to give the best years of her life to Radcliffe or Smith in order to speak the English language.

JULIAN

Countess. I'm really in a dither.
She's turned my head.

THE COUNTESS

Ninety degrees to the left, I hope.
How does she feel about you?

JULIAN

I think she's disappointed that I'm not more, ah, sort of atavistic. She's got some naive, sentimental notions about Indians. I'm sure she liked me, though; but.... then she left town.

THE COUNTESS

She always leaves town, you dummy. That doesn't mean anything. What about in bed? How does she like it in bed?

Julian pauses for a very long moment.

JULIAN

How does she like what in bed?

THE COUNTESS

Like what?

The Countess' teeth chatter in his mouth.

THE COUNTESS

What do you think?

JULIAN

Well.... er...

THE COUNTESS

Shit O dear, Julian. Do you mean to tell me you didn't get it on?

JULIAN

Oh, we didn't get it all the way on.

THE COUNTESS

Whose fault was that?

JULIAN

I suppose it was mine. Yes, it definitely was my fault.

THE COUNTESS

What do they do to you boys in those Ivy league schools, anyway? Strap you down and pump the Nature out of you? They can even press the last drop of Nature out of a Mohawk buck. Why, send a shaman or cannibal to Yale for four years and all he'd be fit for would be a desk in the military-industrial complex and a seat in the third row at a Neil Simon comedy. Jesus H.M.S. Christ! If Harvard or Princeton could get hold of the Chink for a couple of semesters they'd turn him into a candidate for the Bow Tie Wing of the Hall of Wimps. Oogie boogie.

JULIAN

If we Ivy Leaguers aren't earthy enough to suit you hillbillies, at least we don't go around indulging in racist terms such as 'Chink.' Next thing I know, you'll be calling me 'chief.'

THE COUNTESS

Chink's the guy's name, for Christ's sake.

JULIAN

What guy?

THE COUNTESS

Aw, he's some old fart holyman who lives in the hills out West. Gives my ranch the creeps and the willies, too. But though he be old and dirty, he's alive, I'll bet, clear down to his toes. They don't have his juice in a jar in New Haven. Well I suppose that I'll have to write Sissy out on the road.

EXT. ROAD DAY

Sissy makes little puffs of dust as she walks.

From the direction of the ranch a VW Microbus is approaching. It is painted with mandalas, lamaistic dorjes and symbols representing "the clear light of the void."

When the Microbus draws alongside Sissy it stops. Inside are two men and a woman. They are approximately twenty-four years old.

WOMAN

Are you a pilgrim?

SISSY

No, I'm more of an Indian The trio

SISSY

Oh, I may and I may not. But seeing him is not my main objective out here.

That's good. Because he won't see you. We came all the way from Minneapolis to see him and the crazy

By any chance are you Sissy Hankshaw?

SISSY

Yes I am.

A chic middle-aged woman leans out of the car.

MISS ADRIAN

My goodness. Why didn't you telephone?
Someone would have driven into Mottburg to pick you up. I'm Miss Adrian. From the ranch. The Countess

she gets in she flashes her thumb to hitch a ride.

MISS ADRIAN

I'll tell you why, it's that plague of cowgirls. They've gradually infiltrated every sector of our program. The one named Debbie considers herself an expert on exercising and diet. With Bonanza Jellybean's permission and against my explicit orders, she's been coercing the guests into trying something called kundalini yoga. Do you know what that is? It's trying to mentally force a serpent of fire to crawl up your spinal column. Miss Hankshaw, our guests can't comprehend kundalini yoga, let alone do it.
Yesterday, she ordered a new cookbook
by a Tibetan Negro, entitled Third Eye in the Kitchen: Himalayan Soul Food. God knows what that will be like. The little barbarians are destroying everything that I've built, mocking all that the company stands for. And there's a new one, one they call del Ruby. She has the good will of a scorpion. I've considered it prudent to avoid a confrontation that might further upset the guests.
But now that the season is practically over -- we operate April through September -- and the Countess is finally coming...

We're going to replace them with goats. Most of the cattle are diseased and in pain. We're just putting them out of their misery. SISSY

Er, you seem to know who I am, and maybe even what I am. Thanks for the

JELLY

Oh, I know about Sissy Hankshaw, all right. I've done a little hitchhiking myself. Ah shucks, that's like telling Annie Oakley you're a sharpshooter because you once knocked a tomato can off a stump with a fieldstone. I'd heard tales about you from people I'd meet in jail cells and truckstops. I heard about your, uh, your, ah, your wonderful thumbs, and I heard how you were Jack Kerouac's girl friend...

Sissy sets her tray on the bedside table.

SISSY

No, I'm afraid that part isn't true. Jack was in awe of me and tracked me down. We spent a night talking and hugging in a corn field, but he was hardly my lover. Besides, I always travel alone.

JELLY

Well, that doesn't matter; that part never interested me anyway. The beatniks were before my time, and I never got anything outta the hippies but bad dope, clichés and the clap. But the example of your life helped me in my struggle to be a cowgirl.

The guests are huffing and puffing in between the conversation, in the background through the window in room.

SISSY

Tell me about it.

JELLY

About...

SISSY

About being a cowgirl. What's it all about? When you say the word you make it sound like it was painted in radium on the side of a pearl.

JELLY

Cowgirls exist as an image. A fairly common image. The idea of cowgirls especially for little girls prevails in our culture. Therefore, it seems to me, the existence of cowgirls should prevail. Otherwise, they're being fooled. In the Rodeo Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City there are just two cowgirls. Two. And both of 'em are trick-riders. Trick-riding is what cowgirls have almost always done in rodeos. Our society sure likes to see its unconventional women do tricks. That's what prostitutes call it, you know: 'tricking.'

makes Jelly lays her hand atop the oval mound Sissy's thumb under the covers.

SISSY

You're political, then?

JELLY

No, ma'am. No way. There's girls on the Rubber Rose who are political, but I don't share their views. I got no cowgirl ideology to expound. "Politics is for people who have a passion for changing life but lack a passion for living it."

between There is a moment when the two girls feel something each other.

JELLY

Did that last comment sound too profound to be coming outta my mouth? It's not original. It's something I picked up from the Chink.

SISSY

Really? The Chink, huh? I've gathered that you sometimes speak with him. What else have you learned from the Chink?

JELLY

Learned from the Chink? Oh my. Ha ha. That's hard to say. We mostly....

Uh, a lot of his talk is pretty goofy.

Jelly pauses.

JELLY

Oh yeah, now that I think of it, the Chink taught me something about cowgirls. Did you realize that cowgirls have been around for many centuries? Long before America. In ancient India the care of the cattle was always left up to young women they called gopis. Being alone with the cows all the time, the gopis got awfully horny, just like we do here. Every gopi was in love with Krishna, a good-looking young god who played the flute like it was going out of style. When the moon was full, this Krishna would play his flute by a river and call the gopis to him. Then he would multiply himself sixteen thousand times -- one for each gopi -- and make love to each one the way she most desired. There they were, sixteen thousand gopis balling Krishna on the river bank, and the energy of their merging was so great that it created a huge oneness, a total union of love, and it was God. Wow! Quite a picture, huh?

into Sissy's thumb twitches. Jelly swallows hard. They gaze each other's eyes.

A WHISTLE pierces the sunlight outside the window.

JELLY

That couldn't be Krishna, could it?
A bit shrill for a flute. Just our rotten luck.

with Jelly walks to the window and exchanges hand signals

JELLY

Gotta run now. Delores says I'm

the Countess.

Jelly spins her six-shooter in her kewpie fingers.

It's cute. Way cuter than a cow.

DEBBIE

Goats are always testing you. They're like Zen masters. They can tell instantly if you're faking your feelings. So they play games with you to keep you true. People should go to goats instead of psychiatrists.

GLORIA

It's so loving.

Gloria cuts in on Debbie and gives the beast a hug.

HEATHER

Look at those playfully wise eyes.

GLORIA

Ooo! It licked me!

JELLY

More and more people are discovering that cow's milk isn't fit for human consumption. Billy West says if we can produce enough goat's milk on the ranch to make it worth his while, he'll run it into Fargo regularly.

She pauses and looks around the group in the circle.

DELORES

I'm aware that Tad Lucas rode broncs until her ninth month, but I don't think pregnant cowgirls are going to be any asset on this ranch. I hope you itchy clits who are sneaking down to the lake every night are taking precautions. It's bad enough we've got cranes coming; we don't need storks. I feel that those film makers should be removed from the Rubber Rose as soon as possible. Men can cause nothing but trouble here. I also feel that our guest should be excused while we discuss this matter further.

SISSY

What is Debbie's position?

JELLY

Debbie says that if women are to take charge again, they must do it in the feminine way; they mustn't resort to aggressive and violent masculine methods. She says it is up to women to show themselves better than men, to love men, set good examples for them and guide them tenderly toward the New Age. She's a real dreamer, that Debbie-dear.

SISSY

You don't agree with Debbie, then?

JELLY

I wouldn't say that. I expect she's right, ultimately. But I'm with Delores when it comes to fighting for what's mine. I can't understand why Delores is so uptight about the Chink; he could probably teach her a thing or two. Ee! That grass tickles, doesn't it? God knows I love women, but nothing can take the place of a man that fits. Still this is cowgirl territory and I'll stand with Delores and fight any bastards who might deny it. I guess I've always been a scrapper. Look. This scar. Only twelve years old and I was felled by a silver bullet.

was the principle outside confederate of the Clock People.

SISSY

saucepans
The Chink leads Sissy into the cave where we see his clockworks. It is made of garbage can lids and old baling and lard tins and car fenders all wired together with wire. A bat flies into it making a bong noise and the contraption moves a little.

CHINK

During the Second World War I busted out of Tule Lake detention camp; as a Japanese-American, I had been put there and watched over. I found refuge with the Clock People, who discovered me in a snow bank, near dead, I had been climbing across the Sierra Nevada mountains.

SISSY

Then if you are Japanese, then why are you called the Chink?

CHINK

The Clock People mistook me for Chinese. And the name stuck. In the same way that all Indian tribes came to be labeled "Indians" through the ignorance of an Italian sailor with a taste for oranges, it is only fitting that "Indians" misnamed me. The Clock People, however, are not a tribe, rather they are a gathering of Indians from various tribes. They have lived together since 1906.

INT. THE GREAT BURROW

birth

A gathering of the Clock People. A woman is giving birth near the Giant timekeeping hourglass.

CHINK

The pivotal function of the Clock People is the keeping and observing of the clockworks. It is a real thing, and is kept at the center, at the soul, of the Great Burrow. Insofar as it is possible, all Clock People deaths and births occur in the presence of the clockworks. Aside from birthing or dying, the reason for the daily visits to the clockworks is to check the time.

INT. SIWASH CAVE NIGHT

Chink's

Sissy listens to the Chink as they walk around the clockworks.

CHINK

These people have no other ritual than this one. Likewise, they have but one legend or cultural myth: that of a continuum they call the Eternity of Joy. It is into the Eternity of Joy that they believe all men will pass once the clockworks is destroyed. The destruction must come from the outside, must come by natural means, must come at the will of this gesticulating planet whose more acute stirrings thoughtless people call "earthquakes."

The Chink holds Sissy's thumbs in his hands adoringly.

CHINK

The Earth is alive. She burns inside with the heat of cosmic longing. She longs to be with her husband again. She moans. She turns softly in her sleep. In the Eternity of Joy, pluralized, deurbanized man, at ease with his gentle technologies, will smile and sigh when the Earth begins to shake. I loved those loony redskins, but I couldn't be a party to their utopian dreaming. After a while it occurred to me that the Clock People waiting for the Eternity of Joy was virtually identical to the Christians waiting for the Second Coming. Or the Communists waiting for the worldwide revolution. Or the Debbies waiting for the flying saucers. All the same. Just more suckers betting their share of the present on the future, banking every misery on a happy ending to history. Well, history is ending every second - happily for some of us, unhappily for others, happily one second, unhappily the next. History is always ending and always not ending... ha ha ho ho and hee hee.

Sissy interrupts the Chink for a second while he is worshipping her thumbs.

JELLY

Looks like every time we get together things are in a mess.

SISSY

So be it. It looks serious this time, though. All these guns... are you actually prepared to kill and die for whooping cranes?

JELLY

Hell no, the cranes are wonderful, okay, but I'm not in this for whooping cranes. I'm in it for cowgirls. If we cowgirls give in to authority on this crane issue, then cowgirls become just another compromise. I want a finer fate than that -- for me and for every other cowgirl. Better no cowgirls at all than cowgirls compromised.

SISSY

How did this business get started, anyhow? Why are the birds nesting here?

DEBBIE

You were aware that we were feeding them, weren't you? We fed them brown rice and they stayed over a couple of extra days. Then we decided to try something different. We mixed our brown rice with fishmeal -- whoopers love seafood, and fishmeal is cheap. Then Delores suggested another ingredient, and we think that's what did the trick.

SISSY

You mean...

DEBBIE AND JELLY TOGETHER

PEYOTE!

SISSY

They're drugged.

JELLY

Aw, come off it, Sissy. What do you mean, 'drugged'? Every living thing is a chemical composition and anything that is added to it changes that composition. When you eat a cheeseburger or a Three Musketeers bar, it changes your body chemistry. The kind of food you eat, the kind of air you breathe, can change your mental state. Does that mean you're 'drugged'?

her Sissy frames the flock with the hole in the center of

SISSY

No, I guess not.

JELLY

'Drugged' is a stupid word.

SISSY

But the peyote is obviously affecting their brains. It's made them break a migratory pattern that goes back thousands of years.

DEBBIE

The way I see it, is that the peyote mellowed them out. Made them less uptight. They were afraid of bad weather and humans. That's why they migrated and kept to themselves. But the peyote has enlightened them. It's taught them there is nothing to fear but fear itself. Now they're digging life and letting the bad vibes slide on. Don't worry, be happy. Be here now.

SISSY

Fear in wild animals is completely different from paranoia in people. In the wilderness ecosystem, fear is natural and necessary. It's merely a mechanism for maintaining life. If the cranes hadn't had a capacity for fear, they would have disappeared long ago and you'd be having to get loaded with common old everyday meadowlarks and mallards.

JELLY

This here discussion is destined to become academic. Because we've got less than half a bag of peyote buttons left and Delores's run ended up in the Mottburg jail. So any day now we'll get a chance to see how the whoopers behave when they come down, to see if the peyote experience really changed them or not. But in the meantime, I want to say this about fear.....

Then Sissy and Jelly hear a news broadcast on the radio.

ANNOUNCER

Judge Greenfield, at the request of the ACLU, has granted a forty-eight-hour extension of the deadline by which the Rubber Rose cowgirls must comply with his order. Negotiations between the cowgirls and the government are expected to follow. Another item in, the forewoman of the Rubber Rose Ranch, a Delores del Ruby is now free on bond after having been arrested in Mottburg with more than fifty pounds of peyote buttons. Her bail has been paid by the owner of the besieged ranch, Countess Products, Inc. Miss del Ruby's bail having come from the tycoon's personal advisor, a certain Dr. Robbins of New York City.

SISSY

Dr. Robbins?

EXT. PRAIRIE NIGHT

Sissy and Jelly lie under the same stars, under the same blankets. Under the same spell.

Delores and some of the other cowgirls are talking. A wind is beginning to gust.

DELORES

It isn't for ourselves that we take this stand. It isn't for cowgirls. It's for all the daughters everywhere. This is an extremely important confrontation. This is womankind's chance to prove to her enemy that she's willing to fight and die. If we women don't show here and now that we aren't afraid to fight and die, then our enemy will never take us seriously. Men will always know that, no matter how strong our words and determined our deeds, there's a point where we'll back down and give them their way.

It is woman's mission to destroy as the tyranny of the dull. But we can't destroy it with guns. Or whips.

Violence is the dullard's Breakfast

Violence fertilizes that which we would starve. No, we will destroy the enemy in other ways. The Peyote Mother has promised a Fourth Vision.

The brown paper bag is the only thing civilized man has produced that does not seem out of place in nature. Crumpled into a wad of wrinkles, like the fossilized brain of a dryad; its kinship to tree (to knot and nest) unobscured by the cruel crush of industry; absorbing the elements like any other organic entity; blending with rock and vegetation as if it were a burrowing owl's door mat or a jack rabbit's underwear, a No. 8 Kraft paper bag lay discarded in the hills of Dakota and appeared to live where it lay. Once long ago, it had borne a package of buns and a jar of mustard to a kitchenette rendezvous with a fried hamburger. More recently, the bag had held..... love letters.

The Chink looks over and sees that Delores is standing the doorway.

CHINK

I can't help it if I grew up in an antipoetic culture. Language will be different when I'm with the Clock People though. They're from an oral tradition. And I'm not talking about what you horny hop toads do in bed every night.

The Chink smiles.

Delores blushes.

SISSY

Well, if the Clock People give you any inside information on the end of the world, drop us a postcard.

CHINK

The world isn't going to end, you dummy; I hope you know that much.
(he grows
uncharacteristically serious)

But it is going to change. It's going to change drastically, and probably in your lifetime. The Clock People see calamitous earthquakes as the agent of change, and they may be right, since there are a hundred thousand earthquakes a year and major ones are long overdue. But there are far worse catastrophes coming... unless the human race can bring itself to abandon the goals and values of civilization, in other words, unless it can break the consumption habit -- and we are so conditioned to consuming as a way of life that for most of us life would have no meaning without the yearnings and rewards of progressive consumption. It isn't merely that our bad habits will cause global catastrophes, but that our operative political-economic philosophies have us in such a blind crab grip that they prevent us from preparing for the natural disasters that are not our fault. So the apocalyptic shit is going to hit the fan, all right, but there'll be some of us it'll miss. Little pockets of humanity. Like the Clock People. Like you two honeys, if you decide to accept my offer of a lease on Siwash Cave. There's almost no worldwide calamity -- famine, nuclear accident, plague, weather warfare or reduction of the ozone shield -- that you couldn't survive in that cave.

He begins to caress Sissy's belly. His eyes are smiling.

Sissy is surprised.

CHINK

Suppose that you bear five or six children with your characteristics. All in Siwash Cave. In a postcatastrophe world, your offspring would of necessity intermarry, forming in time a tribe. A tribe every member of which had giant thumbs. A tribe of Big Thumbs would relate to the environment in very special ways. It could not use weapons or produce sophisticated tools. It would have to rely on its wits and its senses. It would have to live with animals -- and plants! -- as virtual equals. It's extremely pleasant to me to think about a tribe of physical eccentrics living peacefully with animals and plants, learning their languages, perhaps, and paying them the respect they deserve.

SISSY

How am I going to be the progenitor of a tribe when I'm living on an isolated ridgetop with Delores?

CHINK

That's your problem.

The Chink coughs.
