

KING & MAXWELL

Pilot

Written by Shane Brennan

Revised Network Draft 01-10-12

KING & MAXWELL

Pilot 01-10-12

Written by Shane Brennan

FADE IN:

EXT. DOWNTOWN STREET WASHINGTON DC - DAY

Early morning. The Capitol Building framed at the end of a downtown street. And we're moving, gathering speed, looking behind our direction of travel, so that what we see is only revealed once we've passed...

A loud SMASH! as we pass through an intersection and the aftermath of an auto crash, dazed drivers getting out of their cars... And we're still gathering speed...

More carnage on both sides of the street, parked cars side-swiped, signposts, trashcans and a mailbox crushed... Water rocketing skyward from a shattered fire hydrant...

And now we're passing a speeding sedan, skillfully driven by a woman who we'll come to know as MICHELLE MAXWELL, 30s. Leaving the sedan behind as we draw up alongside the vehicle she is pursuing... An empty Greyhound Bus, the driver a middle-aged man named EDDIE FINCH, who's wearing a furry animal costume.

A moment more to establish the chase, then the bus swerves, Finch over-corrects and the Greyhound flips onto its side and slides down the road, showering sparks and shedding sheet metal before grinding to a stop, blocking the street.

Finch scrambles out as the sedan brakes violently behind the bus. Michelle leaps out, gives chase, giving us our first good look at her. Tall. Athletic. Dangerously beautiful.

EXT. GOVERNMENT BUILDING - DAY

Finch runs up a flight of steps to a Government building. The sign on the door reads: Senator J. Patrick Brady. He rattles the door. Closed. He spins back to face Michelle, pulls a handgun. Michelle stops in her tracks, eyes him steadily.

MICHELLE

You shoot better than you drive, Eddie?

FINCH

Don't come any closer!

He tightens his grip on the gun, clearly nervous. A beat, then a cell-phone rings. Finch's cellphone.

MICHELLE

You going to answer that?

Finch, flustered, pulls out his cell-phone.

FINCH

Yeah?

MAN'S VOICE

(phone filter)

Put the gun down.

FINCH

(looks around nervously)

Who says?

MAN'S VOICE

The guy behind the laser sight.

FINCH

What laser?

MAN'S VOICE

The one on your furry little chest.

Finch glances down, sees a RED LASER DOT centered on his chest. He sucks in a breath. Slowly puts the gun down.

MAN'S VOICE (CONT'D)

Now tell the nice lady she owes me ten bucks.

FINCH

He says you owe him ten dollars.

Michelle sighs, moves forward, kicks Finch's gun clear as SEAN KING, 30s, steps from the shadows at the top of the steps. Tall, handsome and armed with a disarming smile, a cell phone and a combo PEN-LASER-POINTER. Finch realizes he's been duped.

SEAN

Didn't I tell you this is where he'd end up?

MICHELLE

You were so confident, why didn't you make it a hundred?

SEAN

Because you don't have a hundred.

MICHELLE

He could have gone anywhere.

SEAN

Yet here we are. And here's Eddie, trying to reach the senator to blackmail him because he knows the game's up.

(beat)

How many cars did he hit?

MICHELLE

A couple.

SEAN

Sounded more like a coupla dozen.

Michelle deftly spins Finch around, zip tie his wrists.

FINCH

I'd like to see you do better wearing a suit like this, smart-ass.

SEAN

Tail's kinda flat for a rabbit.

FINCH

Beaver.

(off Sean's look)

These look like floppy ears to you?

At the same time, Michelle pulls an envelope from Finch's Beaver suit, opens it, reacts. Several photos. She holds them up for Sean. We glimpse Finch in his Beaver suit in a compromising position with a WOMAN.

MICHELLE

Nothing floppy here, Eddie. Senator's wife really liked the whole fur thing, huh?

FINCH

(pissed)

Just read me my rights.

Sean and Michelle exchange a look. Michelle shrugs.

SEAN

Ah...You've got the right to remain silent. You have the right to speak to an attorney -

MICHELLE

You missed a bit.

(off his look)

Anything you say being used against you -

SEAN

I was coming to that -

MICHELLE
That bit comes before the attorney.

SEAN
I thought it came after -

MICHELLE Before.

SEAN
So, you've got the "right to remain silent" bit -

MICHELLE
- then "anything you say can be used against you" -

SEAN
Anything you say "or do" can be used against you -

MICHELLE
- "in a court of law."

SEAN
- "in a court of law..." Then you've got the whole attorney thing. And then the bit about the court appointing one if you're broke.
(looks to Finch)
That sound right to you?

A bemused Finch looks from one to the other.

FINCH
What kind of cops are you?

MICHELLE
We're not cops, Eddie.

The SQUEAL of CAR BRAKES. She and Sean both react.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
They're the cops.

Finch turns as half a dozen Metro Police cars squeal to a stop and D.C.'s finest leap out, guns drawn.

And off Michelle and Sean raising their hands...

INT. METRO POLICE DEPARTMENT - CHARGING AREA - DAY

UNIFORMED COPS and DETECTIVES processing the morning's catch - from STREET GIRLS to bar room BRAWLERS.

A UNIFORMED COP unlocks the holding cage.

COP
King. Maxwell.

Sean and Michelle step through the door.

COP (CONT'D) Front desk. The Senator vouched for you.

They cross to the front desk, passing Finch, who is being processed by a DETECTIVE. The CHARGE SERGEANT slides over their bagged belongings.

SERGEANT
Check the contents, initial the first page, sign and date the second...you really catch Bugs breaking the law of nature with a Senator's wife?

SEAN
That's why the Senator hired private investigators. And don't call him a rabbit, you'll hurt his feelings.

SERGEANT Hamster?

SEAN Beaver.

MICHELLE
(off the Sergeant's look)
Don't go there.

The Sergeant thinks better of it, goes back to his paperwork.

Michelle clips on her holster, pockets her cellphone and wallet. And waits as Sean struggles with his shoelaces, belt, tie, keys, wallet, cellphone, sunglasses, pocket-knife, combo-pen-laser-pointer and loose change.

SEAN What?

MICHELLE
Did I say something?

SEAN
It's easy for women. Dump it in a purse and you're good to go. Guy's gotta distribute the load. Then you've got all the self-harm accessories - the belt, the shoe laces, the tie -

He takes the combo-pen-laser-pointer from her -

SEAN (CONT'D)
The combo-pen-laser-pointer...

MICHELLE

Never leave home without it.

SEAN

Hey, saved your butt this morning.

She turns for the door. Sean clumps along behind her in his laceless shoes, struggling to loop his belt.

EXT. METRO POLICE DEPARTMENT - DAY

They exit, Sean pausing to lace his shoes.

MICHELLE

What was plan 'B' if he didn't put the gun down?

SEAN

But he did.

MICHELLE

You didn't have a plan 'B', did you, Sean?

SEAN

You were plan 'B'. You had the gun.

MICHELLE

And yours was...?

SEAN

In the glove compartment.

(off her look)

We were chasing an overweight guy in a Beaver suit.

MICHELLE

An armed Beaver.

SEAN

Who didn't even know the safety was on.

She watches him tie his laces.

MICHELLE

Ever heard of slip-ons?

SEAN

First slips-ons. Then pants with elastic tops. And before you know it you're wearing a hoodie and people think you're from L.A.

MURDOCK'S VOICE

Sean King?

Sean and Michelle both look up as two men step up, flashing FBI BADGES. Agent BRANDON MURDOCK, 40s, by the book and his junior partner Agent CARTER, late 20s.

MURDOCK
Agent Murdock, Agent Carter. FBI.

King finishes tying his shoes.

SEAN
If this is about Eddie Finch, you'll have to talk to Metro.

MURDOCK
Do you know a man named Ted Bergin?

Not what Sean was expecting.

SEAN
He's a friend. Why?

MURDOCK
When did you last speak with him?

SEAN
A week ago.

MURDOCK
He called you last night.

SEAN
No he didn't.

MURDOCK
Yes he did.

SEAN
Hope you've got a warrant if you're digging around in my phone records.

CARTER
According to Bergin's records, he logged a thirty second call to your cell last night at nine-forty-two.

As Sean pulls out his cellphone to check...

MICHELLE
What's this about?

MURDOCK
And you are?

MICHELLE
Michelle Maxwell. But I'm guessing you already know that, don't you Agent Murdock?

Murdock eyes her steadily, no need to answer.

SEAN
Nine-forty-two, missed call. Went to voice-mail.

MURDOCK
On speaker if you don't mind.

Sean hesitates, looks at Michelle, then holds up the phone so they can all hear it.

BERGIN'S VOICE
(phone filter)
Sean, it's Ted. I've got new information about Edgar Roy. Call me back as soon as you get this, it's urgent.

And the call ends.

MURDOCK
You know who Edgar Roy is?

SEAN Yeah. Serial killer. Ted's his attorney.

MICHELLE
You going to tell us what this is about now?

A moment, then...

MURDOCK
He's dead.

SEAN Edgar Roy?

MURDOCK
Ted Bergin.
(beat) Murdered.

And off Sean's shock...

END TEASER

ACT ONE

FADE IN:

INT. CITY MORGUE - DAY

FLUORESCENT light flickering us out of BLACK, revealing half a dozen gurneys, each with a sheet draped corpse. The ATTENDANT leads Sean, Michelle, Murdock and Carter to the end gurney.

The Attendant looks at Murdock, who nods. He lifts the sheet, revealing the body of Ted Bergin, 60s. There's a clean bullet wound in his left temple. Sean gazes at the body for a moment.

SEAN

That's Ted.

Murdock nods to the Attendant, who covers the body and leaves.

SEAN (CONT'D)

You know who did this?

MURDOCK

No. Do you?

SEAN

Where did it happen?

MURDOCK

West Virginia. Country road, thirty minutes out of DC. His car was pulled off to the side. Engine was still running. Single gun shot to the head.
(beat)

When did you last see him?

SEAN

Monday. Breakfast.

MURDOCK

You were working with him on the Edgar Roy case?

SEAN

It was our monthly catch-up. He mentioned the case, said he needed some help.

MURDOCK

In your capacity as a lawyer? Or a private investigator?

SEAN

Both.

MURDOCK
Give you the case to read?

SEAN No.

MURDOCK
Brief you?

SEAN
Only the headlines.

MURDOCK
Any idea what this 'new information' might refer to?

SEAN No.

MICHELLE
Shouldn't we be talking to the State police?

MURDOCK
Ted Bergin was the attorney of an alleged serial killer - which makes it FBI jurisdiction.
(beat)
Bergin made two calls last night.
(looks to Sean)
The second was to you. The first was to the Federal Correctional Facility at Cutter's Rock. He was on his way to see Edgar Roy in prison when he was killed.

MICHELLE
Was the window down?

Murdock looks at her blankly.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
The driver's window - was it down?

MURDOCK
Yes.

MICHELLE
Cold night. He pulls over, rolls the window down. Suggests he knew his killer. Or it was someone he had no reason to fear. Like law enforcement.

Murdock holds her gaze for a beat, then turns to Sean.

MURDOCK
You remember anything, call me.

And he and Carter depart. Michelle turns back to Sean, who raises the sheet, gazes down at Bergin's body.

SEAN

He saved my life once. I ever tell you that?

MICHELLE

No.

SEAN

(quietly)

What did you get yourself into, Ted?

And off Sean hurting...

EXT. BERGIN'S LAW OFFICE - DAY

Late afternoon. Sean and Michelle pull up outside Bergin's law office in Michelle's LANDCRUISER. As they get out, a couple of FBI AGENTS leave the office carrying archive boxes and add them to other boxes, files and computers in the trunk of their sedan.

MICHELLE

Murdock's not wasting any time.

The Agents clock Sean and Michelle as they enter the office.

INT. BERGIN'S LAW OFFICE - DAY

A well kept woman in her 50s, HILARY CUNNINGHAM, looks up as Sean and Michelle enter. The office is a mess - open drawers and cabinets, desks stripped of computers and hard drives.

HILARY

Sean...

They embrace.

SEAN

You okay?

HILARY

Keeping busy. Or I was until they arrived... Did you see them?

SEAN

FBI?

HILARY

At first they just wanted the Edgar Roy files. But when they saw how little there was - they decided to take everything.

(sees Michelle)

You must be Michelle...

SEAN
Hilary Cunningham, Ted's secretary.

MICHELLE
Sorry we're meeting under these circumstances.

MEGAN'S VOICE
(edged with defiance)
There's nothing left to take.

Everyone turns to see MEGAN RILEY, early 20s, standing in the doorway. Megan's clutching a tissue, has clearly been crying.

HILARY
It's okay. These are friends, Megan.
Ted's friends.
(to Sean and Michelle) Megan's just out of law school. Only joined us last month. Ted has big plans for her -

Realizes her mistake. Sean covers.

SEAN
Did Ted get you to review the Edgar Roy file?

MEGAN
What there was of it.

Megan looks questioningly at Hilary, who nods her encouragement.

MEGAN (CONT'D)
Six weeks ago, Edgar Roy was charged with the murder of six men. None have been identified. Police caught him with a shovel in his hand and the bodies partly buried in his barn.

SEAN
Has he entered a plea?

MEGAN
No.

SEAN
Make any admissions?

MEGAN
No.

MICHELLE
What did Ted think?

MEGAN

He said the evidence was overwhelming.

MICHELLE

So why did he take the case?

HILARY

Because when he met Edgar Roy, he knew no one else would. Justice for all.

SEAN

That was Ted alright. He mention anything about 'new information'?

MEGAN

No. I'm sorry...

MICHELLE

How was he yesterday?

HILARY

A pain in the butt. Said he was trying to 'decipher something'.

MICHELLE

Know what that could have been?

HILARY

He wouldn't tell me. But I could tell it was important to him.

MICHELLE

He ever take work home?

HILARY

Not until last year...

MICHELLE

What changed?

SEAN

His wife died.

MICHELLE

(to Sean)
No harm in looking.

SEAN

Stay away from Murdock.

MICHELLE

Where are you going?

SEAN

Thought I'd take a drive and see Edgar Roy.

MEGAN

You're wasting your time.

Sean and Michelle both shoot her a look.

MEGAN (CONT'D)

He's on 24-hour suicide watch. No visitors.

SEAN

I'll figure something out.

MEGAN

Even if they do let you in, it won't make any difference.

(beat)

Edgar Roy hasn't uttered a single word to anyone, including Mister Bergin, since he was arrested six weeks ago.

Sean and Michelle exchange a look as they realize what they're up against.

EXT. CORRECTIONAL FACILITY - NIGHT

An ugly concrete building wrapped in razor wire and bristling with cameras. A sedan slows to a stop at the main gate. A PRISON GUARD steps out to the car. Sean lowers the window.

SEAN

I'm here to see an inmate.

PRISON GUARD

His name?

SEAN

Edgar Roy.

PRISON GUARD

And who are you?

SEAN

His lawyer.

INT. WARDEN'S OFFICE - NIGHT

Sean sits opposite the WARDEN, CARLA DUKES, 40s. A bruiser in a starched shirt. Her name carved in wood and embossed in gold on the nameplate on her desk. She's referring to a file.

SEAN

A personal greeting from the Warden. That must make me or my client very special. My money's on Edgar.

DUKES

I heard his lawyer was dead. You don't look dead. Honest truth, you don't even look like a lawyer.

SEAN

I'm flattered. On both counts. And you don't look like a prison warden, either.
(beat) Much.

Dukes holds his gaze, as tough as the men she incarcerates.

SEAN (CONT'D)

Ex-military?

DUKES

Marine Corp. You serve your country, Mister King?

SEAN

Eleven years.

Dukes tries to hide her surprise - she hadn't picked it.

SEAN (CONT'D)

For the Commander-in-Chief.
(off her frown) Secret Service.

She's just been one-upped.

DUKES

And now you're a lawyer.

SEAN

Edgar Roy's lawyer. Retained by Ted Bergin to work on the defense team.
(hands her his Bar Association ID)
With the death of Mister Bergin, I need to seek instruction from Edgar Roy as to how to proceed.

Dukes doesn't like lawyers. Or former Secret Service agents.

SEAN (CONT'D)

Ma'am, if you deny him access to legal counsel, you may be held in contempt by the State Attorney General.
(beat)
As I'm sure you're aware.

DUKES

You can talk to him.
(holds out his ID)
Just don't expect him to talk back.

Sean takes it, sensing that although he's won the battle, he might just have lost the war.

EXT. BERGIN'S HOUSE - NIGHT

Headlights sweep across the darkened house on the outskirts of the city. Michelle parks her Landcruiser in the driveway, gets out with her flashlight, heads for the house.

EXT. BERGIN'S HOUSE - PORCH - NIGHT

FBI CRIME SCENE TAPE criss-crosses the front door, sealing it.

MICHELLE

Crap.

INT. CORRECTIONAL FACILITY - INTERVIEW ROOM - NIGHT

A PRISON GUARD shows Sean into a large gloomy room. In the center of the room is a small table and two chairs. One is a simple, functional wooden kitchen chair. The other is made of iron and sweat stained leather, bolted to the floor.

Sitting in the chair, his face in shadow, is an intimidating, man-giant - EDGAR ROY, early 30s. His arms are locked into heavy iron cuffs attached to the armrests, his legs chained to a heavy hoop imbedded in the concrete floor.

Sean starts as the door is slammed behind him, multiple dead bolts rammed home with an ominous CLUNK -

INT. BERGIN'S HOUSE - KITCHEN - SAME TIME

SCREECH - as a kitchen window is forced open. Michelle climbs through the window, crosses to the back door, hits a switch - flooding the kitchen in light. A few dishes in the sink. An open newspaper and an empty coffee cup on the table.

Several notes pinned by magnets to the fridge door. Nothing of interest. Michelle opens the fridge. Bachelor food. She closes the fridge with a THUMP.

IN PRISON:

SCRAPE of the chair, Sean sits down opposite Edgar Roy.

SEAN

My name's Sean King. I'm a lawyer.
Among other things.

No response.

He studies Edgar Roy's face, still in shadow. He opens his briefcase, sets down a legal pad and a pencil.

SEAN (CONT'D)
I'm sorry to have to tell you this, Mister Roy, but Ted Bergin was shot and killed last night.

No reaction.

Sean glances up at a security camera on the wall, then leans closer, lowers his voice.

SEAN (CONT'D)
He was my friend.
(beat)
Do you know who killed him, Edgar?

Nothing.

Sean gazes at him a for a long moment, then, looking for some response, slowly raises his hand and SNAPS HIS FINGERS -

IN BERGIN'S DEN

SNAP of a light switch, revealing the den. Computer cables on the desk, but no computer. File drawers opened. A white board on the wall, covered in letters and numbers. Papers haphazardly strewn about. Thoroughly searched rather than trashed.

Michelle picks up a micro-cassette recorder, pops it open.
No cassette. She surveys the room, draws in a DEEP BREATH -

IN PRISON:

Sean EXHALES, at a loss.

SEAN
Is there anyone I can contact for you?
Family?
(no response)
Friends?
(nothing)
You know certain people might think your refusal to speak is a sign of guilt.
(nothing)
Just thought I'd point that out to you. What I said before, about Ted being a friend... it's true. Was true.

Sean twirls the pencil in his fingers. Remembering.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Few years back I worked for the Secret Service. One day, something happened.
Worst possible thing that can happen.
Man I was in charge of protecting was assassinated.

(MORE)

SEAN (CONT'D)

(beat)

He was a Presidential candidate. Found out later I was set up. But my career was over by then.

(beat)

Had a couple of rough years, not that I remember much about them. Know what the cheapest whiskey in the world is, Edgar? Lao-Lao. Rice whiskey. Seventy-five cents a bottle in Laos. Not much more here if you know where to buy it.

(beat)

I did. Then I met Ted Bergin. He was doing some pro bono work and I was the next guy to appear before the judge.

(beat)

He got me off the charges. Got me sober. Got me into law school.

(beat)

Got me back my life.

(leans forward)

You don't want my help. Fine. But I need yours to find out who killed our friend.

A long moment, then Edgar almost imperceptibly moves his head, catches Sean's gaze. Holds it. Whispers...

EDGAR

The wall.

IN BERGIN'S DEN

Michelle, reacting, cocks her head. She's gazing at the white board, seeing it for what it is...a clue. She pulls out her CELLPHONE, lines up the white board. The shutter CLICKS -

IN PRISON

CLOSE on a SECURITY CAMERA lens.

Sean stares at it for a moment, then looks at a second camera further along the wall, both angled at he and Edgar Roy.

SEAN

They may be watching us, but they're not allowed to listen to us, Edgar. Feel free to cut loose. Got all night.

No response. Sean pulls out a business card.

SEAN (CONT'D)

When you feel like talking. I'm a good listener.

He puts the business card into Edgar Roy's hand.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Something I learned from Ted.

He picks up his briefcase, heads for the door. He pauses to look back at Edgar Roy, framed for a moment in the doorway. A beat then the PRISON GUARD closes the door with a heavy THUMP -

IN BERGIN'S DEN

Michelle snaps her head towards the window. A car door. Just enough time to frown as the sound registers, then -

BAM! BAM! BAM! BAM! as the window explodes under a hail of gunfire. Michelle dives for cover as rounds punch into the wall and the white board behind her.

She rolls onto her back, drawing her SIG in one smooth movement, takes aim and fires - shooting out the light bulb, plunging the room into darkness.

She comes back up, returns fire through the shattered window, then scrambles for the door.

IN BERGIN'S HALLWAY

She sprints down the hallway as more shots rip into the walls and windows behind her. Without breaking stride, she scoops up a seat cushion from the sofa and launches herself at a window, using the cushion to shield herself from the shattering glass -

EXT. BERGIN'S HOUSE - CONTINUOUS

Michelle crashes through the window, hits the ground, rolls clear of the sofa cushion and comes up in a crouched position - as a car engine roars into life.

She sprints towards the street in time to see a SEDAN speeding away. She unloads the rest of her clip, hits the release. The clip drops clear and she slams home a replacement.

The car speeds into the night.

Michelle releases a steady, calming breath, turns back towards the house - and stops in her tracks as she sees a BODY slumped in the driveway.

She pulls out her flashlight, flicks it on to reveal...

...the lifeless body of Hilary Cunningham.

And off Michelle's stunned reaction...

END ACT ONE

ACT TWO

FADE IN:

EXT. BERGIN'S HOUSE - NIGHT

Now a brightly lit crime scene. Sean drives up, surveys the scene. Police tape, squad cars, a forensic van and a dozen Cops and Forensic Technicians. And Hilary's body, a Cop holding back the shroud for a FORENSIC PHOTOGRAPHER to take photos.

With a heavy heart, Sean turns away, crosses to the Landcruiser, where Agent Murdock is talking to Michelle.

MURDOCK

You entered a house sealed by the FBI as part of an ongoing murder investigation.

MICHELLE

Only the door was sealed. And it still is...

Murdock glances across at the house - smashed windows, bullet riddled walls - and miraculously intact, the front door still criss-crossed with FBI crime scene tape.

Sean joins them, looks the question at Michelle, who answers with a discreet nod - she's fine. She turns back to Murdock.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

I got in through an open window.

MURDOCK

Illegal entry.

MICHELLE

(holds up a key)
Not if you've got one of these. I just chose to go in through the window.

Murdock pulls out a latex glove, takes the key.

MURDOCK

Where did you get it?

MICHELLE

Hilary gave it to me.

MURDOCK

Before or after you shot her?

Michelle fixes him with a cool look.

MICHELLE

If I'd shot her, she'd be lying in a pool of blood. She's not. She was shot earlier, her body dumped here.

MURDOCK

By you?

MICHELLE

Why would I do that?

Murdock holds her gaze.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

Ballistics will clear my gun as the murder weapon.

She opens the back door of her Landcruiser.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

You want to test for blood, be my guest.

Murdock peers in the back of the Landcruiser - it's a pigsty - empty water bottles, fast food wrappers, running shoes, an overflowing gym bag and assorted empty coffee cups.

MURDOCK

This your boyfriend's car?

Michelle's eyes narrow.

MURDOCK (CONT'D)

My mistake.

(beat)

Why would someone take a shot at you and dump a body?

MICHELLE

Warning me off the case maybe.

MURDOCK

Which is what I'm doing right now.

He looks from her to Sean.

MURDOCK (CONT'D)

I don't like private investigators. They're usually cashed-out cops or enthusiastic amateurs -

MICHELLE

We're neither.

MURDOCK

No - you both worked together for the Secret Service -

MICHELLE
(correcting him)
Sean had already left when I joined.

MURDOCK
- and now you're both washed up bullet catchers who got 'retired' because you screwed up.

Michelle fumes, Sean takes it a little better. But not much.

MURDOCK (CONT'D)
(to Michelle)
At least the guy you were supposed to be protecting didn't get killed.

And he looks pointedly at Sean who stares back unflinching.

MURDOCK (CONT'D)
Stick to lost dogs and jealous husbands. Leave this one to us.

He turns away.

MICHELLE
Aren't you going to ask me if I found anything in the house?

Murdock looks back at her, shakes his head - as if she could possibly have found something that the FBI's finest had missed. He keeps walking. Sean steps up alongside Michelle.

SEAN
Did you?

MICHELLE
Yeah. I just don't know what it means.
(beat)
What the hell have we stumbled into?

And off their shared concern...

EXT. POTOMAC RIVER - WASHINGTON DC - DAY

Dawn. Oars break the glassy water. A two oared skulling-boat punches into frame, Michelle skillfully working the oars. She angles the boat towards a HOUSEBOAT moored on the river bank.

EXT. HOUSEBOAT/OFFICE - DAY

As Michelle glides alongside, Sean comes out, coffee in hand.

SEAN
How was the commute?

MICHELLE
Better than yours.

SEAN

Ever had a river-rage incident? Been cut off by a tug boat captain? Had words with a passenger ferry guy? Sprayed by a speeding jet-ski jock?

MICHELLE

Sean, I hate you in the mornings.

She ships the oars, climbs from the boat with a day pack.

SEAN

You do know normal people don't row to work, don't you?

MICHELLE

You should try it.

SEAN

I don't have an apartment near the river, like you do.

MICHELLE

You could ride a bicycle.

SEAN

You mean the whole funny helmet skin tight lycra thing? Where would I put my gun? And my morning cup of joe? Do bicycles have cup-holders?

She ties off the skulling-boat, takes his coffee as she passes.

SEAN (CONT'D)

You're welcome.

As she heads into the houseboat, he sneaks a peek into the skulling-boat. Week old orange peels, half a banana, empty water bottles, assorted food wrappers, socks and a sweat-top.

SEAN (CONT'D)

(with a wry smile)

Right there. That's why we could never get married.

He follows her into the houseboat, calling after her...

SEAN (CONT'D)

Hey, if I lived on the river we could boat-pool. You could row and I could sit in the back and read the Times all the way here to the office.

INT. HOUSEBOAT/OFFICE - CONTINUOUS

The houseboat has been converted into Sean and Michelle's office. A couple of work areas with desktops, printers and a photocopier. Towards the back, a pair of sofas beside a kitchenette. A central corridor leads to the forward area of the houseboat.

Michelle is studying a handwritten page copied from the photo she took of Ted Bergin's white board.

MICHELLE
Make any sense to you?

SEAN
Been staring at it all night. There are some numbers. And some letters. And then there are some numbers and letters together.

MICHELLE
Me neither.

She heads down the central corridor, stripping as she goes. Enters a bathroom, leaves the door ajar. Sean unperturbed. Their morning office routine.

MICHELLE'S VOICE
When I saw it, I remembered Hilary saying that Ted was trying to decipher something.

The sound of a shower starting.

SEAN
You think Murdock took a photo?

MICHELLE'S VOICE
You can count on it. Guy doesn't look like he'd miss much.

Sean picks up the phone, dials a number.

SEAN
Megan - it's Sean.
(listens)
No, I sent them. Called in a favor with a couple of friends at Metro. Just there to keep an eye on you.
(beat)
Hey, did Edgar Roy retain Ted or was it someone else?
(listens)
Remember the address?

He scribbles on a notepad. Michelle returns, hair wet, wearing a shirt and still pulling on her jeans.

SEAN (CONT'D)

Great. Thanks.

(hangs up)

Ted was hired by a guy named Kelly Paul. Megan handled the billing. Lincoln Avenue, Rockville. Can't remember the street number.

MICHELLE

Kelly... Could also be a woman.

Sean looks at the name as if it might provide a clue. Michelle plucks it from his fingers, heads for the door.

SEAN

You can drive.

EXT. KELLY PAUL'S HOUSE - DAY

Sean and Michelle pull up outside a house in a leafy suburb.

Sean knocks some rubbish from the footwell as he gets out. He picks it up, looks for somewhere to put it, gives up, tosses it back into the Landcruiser.

Michelle knocks as Sean joins her. The door is opened by a woman in her late-30s. KELLY PAUL is tall, athletic and reserved.

KELLY

Yes?

SEAN

We're looking for Kelly Paul...

KELLY

You've found her. And you are?

SEAN

Sean King -

MICHELLE

Michelle Maxwell.

KELLY

Ted told me about you -

Sean and Michelle exchange a quick look.

KELLY (CONT'D)

I only just heard what happened... I was going to call...

MICHELLE

You know a man named Edgar Roy?

KELLY
He's my brother.

And off Sean and Michelle reacting...

INT. KELLY PAUL'S HOUSE - DAY

A mantelpiece lined with family photographs. Some of Edgar Roy alone, others with Edgar Roy and his sister.

KELLY'S VOICE
Do you have any siblings, Miss Maxwell?

Michelle looks across at Kelly, who is sitting with Sean on the sofa, nursing a cup of coffee.

MICHELLE
I'm the youngest of five.

KELLY
Were you a spoiled brat? Or was it a fight to survive?

MICHELLE
Fight to survive.

SEAN Spoiled brat.

Michelle gives Sean a 'how-the-hell-would-you-know' look.

KELLY (CONT'D)
Everyone in a family has a different perspective. Mine is that I grew up being my brother's protector. Hard to imagine someone as big as Edgar would need protecting. But he was different from all the other kids. Not just physically... but intellectually.
(beat)
Edgar is a high functioning, autistic savant. He has a way with numbers. My brother's 'gift' turned him into a science experiment. I tried to keep everyone at bay. The doctors. The researchers. The opportunists. But I couldn't protect him forever. A few months after I moved out, he had a breakdown. I don't think he ever fully recovered.

SEAN
High functioning... does that mean he could hold down a job?

KELLY
Could. And did. He worked for the IRS for nine years. Right up to the day he was arrested.

(MORE)

KELLY (CONT'D)
(forcefully)
My brother didn't do those things.

An awkward silence. Kelly regains her composure.

SEAN
What kind of work?

KELLY
Clerical. No one there knew what he was capable of... Edgar preferred it that way. He loved going to work, being with people... Now, locked up, alone in prison...
(falters)
I'm so scared for him.

MICHELLE
Know which branch of the IRS?

KELLY
Head office. On K Street.
(beat)
Go ahead. Call them. They'll confirm everything I've said.

Michelle glances at Sean, then heads for the door.

SEAN
What made you choose Ted Bergin?

KELLY
Edgar called me when he was arrested. Said two words.

SEAN Ted Bergin.

KELLY
He must have heard about him. Decided he was a good man.

SEAN
He was right.

KELLY
Ted phoned, said he was going to talk to you, that you and your partner were the best investigators on the East Coast. That you were also a lawyer...

SEAN
If I'm to help your brother, I need to be retained as his lawyer.

KELLY
How much?

SEAN
How does a dollar sound?

EXT. KELLY PAUL'S HOUSE - DAY

Michelle is by the Landcruiser, watching Sean and Kelly as they step onto the porch.

KELLY
When he's stressed he shuts down, doesn't talk. But it doesn't mean he's not watching. Listening. Thinking.
(beat)
I don't care if you're doing this for Ted and not Edgar, Mister King. Just get him out of there.... please.

Sean pulls out the coded whiteboard page. Shows her.

SEAN
Mean anything to you?

KELLY
(studies the page)
No, I'm sorry. Is it important?

SEAN Maybe.

BACK AT THE LANDCRUISER

Michelle watches as Sean shakes Kelly's hand, crosses to the Landcruiser.

MICHELLE
Any luck with the white board?

SEAN No.

MICHELLE
Do you believe her?

SEAN
Every word.

MICHELLE
Then either someone's lying or not in the loop.
(off Sean's look)
Edgar Roy hasn't worked for the IRS for more than a year.

And off Sean's reaction...

INT. BERGIN'S LAW OFFICE - DAY

The Landcruiser pulls into the parking lot. Sean crosses to talk to TWO COPS in a squad car. Michelle parks, heads for the office. Sean joins her as the cops pull into traffic.

MICHELLE
So what's he been doing for twelve months? Killing people?

SEAN
His sister doesn't believe it for a second. I don't think Ted did either. He was onto something. It got both he and Hilary killed.

MICHELLE
Good to know. We're all targets then.

SEAN
None bigger than Edgar Roy himself.

INT. BERGIN'S OFFICE - DAY

Megan, tissue in hand, looks up as Sean and Michelle enter. There are several archive boxes on the desks.

MEGAN
I didn't know what else to do, so I came to work. Are the police still outside.

SEAN
Sent them home. You got us now.
(beat)
Maybe you should get out of DC for a few days. Go visit family or friends some place out of state.

MEGAN
I'm staying. I want to help.

MICHELLE
Did the FBI talk to you?

MEGAN
Agent Murdock. He doesn't like me.

MICHELLE
You've done nothing to make him not like you, Megan.

MEGAN Yes I have.
(off their look)
(MORE)

MEGAN (CONT'D)

I filed a writ for the immediate return of the legal files, citing client privilege. The judge ruled in our favor.

(indicating the boxes)

The FBI just returned everything.

MICHELLE

You're right. Murdock officially hates you. Edgar Roy, on the other hand, is about to become your biggest fan.

MEGAN

I'm not sure whether I should be pleased or nervous about that.

SEAN

Getting the files back is a good start, but we're going to need more.

He sits at his laptop, starts typing.

MEGAN

What are you doing?

SEAN

Logging onto Ted's phone records.

MICHELLE

Find out who he's been calling. And who's been calling him.

ON THE SCREEN, Sean is prompted to enter a password.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

Good idea while it lasted.

Sean thinks a moment, types in a password. The account opens.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

You knew his password?

SEAN

He was married to the same woman for thirty-seven years. Cynthia.

MICHELLE

You haven't started reading Romance fiction again, have you?

Sean lets it slide. They scroll through the phone numbers.

SEAN

Got one. Bergin called this number nine, ten... eleven times in the two days before he was killed.

MEGAN

How do you find out whose number it is?

SEAN

That's the easy bit.

He punches in the number, puts the phone on speaker.

ASSISTANT (VO)

(phone filter)
Peter Bunting's office.

SEAN

I'd like to speak to Mister Bunting, please.

ASSISTANT

What's it regarding?

SEAN

Edgar Roy.

A moment of silence, then -

ASSISTANT

I'm sorry, Edgar Roy no longer works for the company. I'm afraid Mister Bunting can't help you. Thank you for calling.

Dial tone. Michelle is already working the keyboard.

MICHELLE

Peter Bunting plus the telephone number equals...Bunting Industries.

A website pops up on screen.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

Defense contractor, one of the top five in the country.

SEAN

And the man himself...

Sean and Michelle stare at a photo of Peter Bunting, the CEO.

MICHELLE

I don't like this guy already.

MURDOCK'S VOICE

You referring to me?

They look up as Agent Murdock enters, Agent Carter in tow.

MICHELLE

What gave you the impression I don't like you?

MURDOCK

Maybe it's because I don't like you.
(nods at Megan)
Or this one.

SEAN

If you wait a couple more minutes, I'm sure you won't like me, either.
(indicates the filing boxes)
I look forward to telling my client the FBI is cooperating to make sure he gets a fair trial.

MURDOCK

I'd like to be there when you do.
Then I could arrest both of you.

Sean senses something bad is about to happen...

MURDOCK (CONT'D)

Edgar Roy broke out of prison two hours ago.

And off Sean and Michelle's shock...

END OF ACT TWO

ACT THREE

FADE IN:

INT. BERGIN'S LAW OFFICE - DAY

Murdock studies Sean and Michelle for their reaction.

MICHELLE
How does a high security inmate break out of prison in broad daylight?

SEAN
Warden Carl's going to be pissed.

MURDOCK
Carla.

SEAN
You sure?

MURDOCK
He didn't exactly break out. He walked out, caught a local bus to DC. Looks like he memorized every guard's routine, as well as the placement and the sweep of all the security cameras.

SEAN
Electronic key codes?

MURDOCK
Warden thinks he heard the tone pads and was able to memorize the harmonic pitch of each key entry.

SEAN
Not exactly your run-of-the-mill serial killer.

MICHELLE
We're not going to hear about this on the news, are we...

Murdock holds her gaze a moment, then drops a plastic evidence bag containing a BUSINESS CARD in front of Sean.

MURDOCK Familiar?

SEAN
My business card.

Handwritten on the back is a seven digit number.

MURDOCK
Edgar Roy left it on his pillow. Like he wanted us to find it.

SEAN
Told him he could contact me any time.

MURDOCK
Has he tried?

SEAN No.

MURDOCK
And the number on the back?

Murdock watches him closely, trying to read his reaction.

SEAN
I didn't write it. Looks like a phone number. But I guess it's not... or you wouldn't be asking.
(holds out the card)
Did I pass?

Murdock takes the card off Sean, hands him his own card.

MURDOCK
Edgar Roy contacts you, you call me.
If he does, and you don't, I'll personally make sure you never practice law in this district again.
(looks to Michelle)
Or work as a private investigator.

Murdock heads for the door. Sean and Michelle watch him go.

SEAN
My inner lawyer's telling me it might be a smart idea to delete the photo you took in Ted's office.

MEGAN
What photo?

Sean pulls out the coded page.

SEAN
This mean anything?

MEGAN
(shakes her head)
Should it?

MICHELLE
Something Ted was working on at home.

MEGAN

You really need to delete that. If the FBI ever got a search warrant and found it -

MICHELLE

(taps delete on her phone) Deleted.

MEGAN

What do we do now?

SEAN

Might be a good idea if you review Ted's files. But not here. My place will be safer.

MEGAN

What will you do?

MICHELLE

Housecall.

EXT. BUNTING INDUSTRIES-CITY STREET - DAY

A modern office building sheathed in mirrored glass. Sean and Michelle park across the street in the Landcruiser.

MICHELLE

Money.

SEAN

That big black sucking hole called defense appropriations.

MICHELLE

Looks like Bunting's appropriated his fair share.

(frowns, seeing something)
See them?

SEAN

Three by the door, one curbside.

From their POV, FOUR MEN in suits, discreetly watching the passing traffic. A stretched LIMO is parked at the curb.

MICHELLE

Protection detail.

SEAN

Government plates.

MICHELLE

I know one of the agents. Tom Taylor.

Sean takes two high-tech miniature EARWIGS from the console.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
Used to work with State. Quick. Light on his feet.

SEAN
(hands her an earwig)
You saw him in action?

MICHELLE
Ballroom dancing.

As Sean reacts, Michelle gets out of the Landcruiser.

SEAN Assignment?

MICHELLE Date.

And she's angling across the street towards Bunting Industries. She pulls out her cellphone.

Sean slips in his earwig, then digs through the crap behind the driver's seat and pulls out a camera with a telephoto lens. He raises the camera, checks out Taylor, snaps a couple of shots.

SEAN
Looks more like a Dick than a Tom.

INTERCUT WITH:

EXT. BUNTING INDUSTRIES - ENTRANCE - DAY

Michelle walks towards the limo, cellphone to her ear.

MICHELLE Heard that.

SEAN'S VOICE
(earwig distortion)
Comms check out A-OK.

TOM TAYLOR, early 40s, glances her way, reacts.

MICHELLE
(faking a phone call)
That's great. Mine too. Ciao.

She turns off the cellphone, feigns surprise at seeing Taylor.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
Tom!

TAYLOR
Michelle... Hi...

He glances selfconsciously at the other Agents.

MICHELLE
Funny, I was just thinking about you - isn't that crazy?

SEAN'S VOICE
Try insane.

TAYLOR Really?

SEAN'S VOICE
No.

MICHELLE
Yes. Really.
(beat)
You working?

TAYLOR
Yeah...

MICHELLE
Still with State?

TAYLOR
Homeland Security.

SEAN'S VOICE
No one else would have me.

MICHELLE
Who's your protectee?

TAYLOR
You know I can't tell you that.

MICHELLE
Professional curiosity. Sorry.
(turning on the charm)
Anyone I know?

TAYLOR
Er...maybe...

The faint garbled distortion of a voice from Taylor's earwig.
He glances quickly towards the entrance.

SEAN'S VOICE
Looks like we're about to find out.

TAYLOR
You should call me...

SEAN'S VOICE
Dick.

MICHELLE Tom -
SEAN'S VOICE Or Harry.
MICHELLE
- that would be very -
SEAN'S VOICE
Unlikely.
MICHELLE
- very -
SEAN'S VOICE
Stupid of me.
MICHELLE
- cool.
SEAN'S VOICE
Not.

Taylor smiles, pleased with himself, then he's on the move.

Sean begins taking photos as a WOMAN, late 40s, exits the building with PETER BUNTING and two other Agents.

Michelle discreetly pulls out her phone, times her approach so she'll pass as the Woman and Bunting get in the limo. Bunting suddenly stops as he sees someone inside.

MAN'S VOICE
Peter, so good to see you.

The Woman puts a firm hand on his back and Bunting reluctantly gets into the limo. The Woman follows.

MICHELLE
Recognize the protectee?

SEAN'S VOICE
Ellen Foster. Assistant Director of Homeland Security.

Michelle slides in behind the wheel of the Landcruiser.

MICHELLE
There was someone in the limo. Bunting was definitely not happy to see him.

She starts the Landcruiser, pulls into the traffic.

EXT. WASHINGTON STREETS - LANDCRUISER (DRIVING) - DAY

Sean and Michelle follow the limo, which is escorted by a second SUV containing Taylor and the security detail.

MICHELLE
Ever been this side of the river?

SEAN
Not without back-up.

EXT. WASHINGTON BACK STREET - LANDCRUISER - DAY

The limo swings into the curb and Bunting gets out. The limo and escort car speed off. Sean and Michelle pull over, get out as Bunting takes out his cellphone.

SEAN
Your friends mustn't like you to drop you off in this part of town. Need a ride?

BUNTING
I'm good. Thanks.
(into his phone)
Third Street. GPS is activated.

MICHELLE
Cavalry on their way, Mister Bunting?

BUNTING
Do I know you?

MICHELLE
Michelle Maxwell.

SEAN
Sean King. Our client's Edgar Roy.

BUNTING
I've got nothing to say to you.

He turns, walks away. Sean and Michelle go after him.

SEAN
Funny. Neither does he. That's why we'd like you to fill in the gaps.
(beat)
Starting with what kind of work Edgar Roy did...

BUNTING
I'll have my attorney call you. Make sure you've got your own when he does.

MICHELLE
Edgar Roy has a thing with numbers.
What exactly did he do? Development?
Research? Analyst?

Bunting reacts.

SEAN
And I think we have a winner.

Suddenly two SUVs swing into the curb. FOUR BIG GUYS get out.

LEAD BODYGUARD
You okay Mister Bunting?

BUNTING
I'm fine.

He glares from Sean to Michelle, heads for the nearest SUV as the Bodyguards quickly move forward to protect him.

SEAN
You know he's escaped from prison?

Bunting doesn't look back.

MICHELLE
Who was the guy in the limo?

Bunting shoots her a look, clearly rattled. One of the Bodyguards grabs Michelle by the arm, blocks her from following. She stops, looks from his hand to his face.

SEAN
Bad manners to grab a lady like that, pal. You might wanna reconsider.

BODYGUARD
You going to make me?

SEAN
No. She's a big girl.

The Bodyguard looks back at Michelle.

With blurring speed, Michelle pounds her foot into his knee. The Bodyguard goes down. The other Bodyguards react. So does Sean.

In a fast-actioned fight sequence, Michelle puts down the second and third Bodyguards while Sean dispatches the fourth.

But not before Bunting has sped off in one of the SUVs.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Well, that was fun.

MICHELLE

Hard way to get answers.

They head back to the Landcruiser. Michelle pulls out her phone, plays back the video she shot at the limo.

For a brief moment we glimpse the face of a man in the back of the limo as Foster firmly shoves Bunting in to join him.

SEAN

Don't recognize him.

MICHELLE

Me neither.

(beat)

But I know someone who might.

INT. ILLEGAL GAMING HOUSE - DAY

LARRY NEEDHAM, mild-mannered, 40s, is playing poker, and losing badly. As he throws in his hand in disgust, his cellphone chirps: "FBI about to raid your location. Get out now! MM." Larry looks around, panic taking hold.

EXT. GAMING HOUSE - DAY

Larry quickly exits the building, walks down the street. Michelle steps out in front of him, blocking his way.

MICHELLE

Hi Larry. Same old habit, same old haunt.

(beat)

Hope I didn't scare you.

LARRY

No FBI?

MICHELLE

Not that I'm aware of.

LARRY

What do you want, Michelle?

MICHELLE

Cup of coffee.

And off Larry's resigned look...

INT. DINER - DAY

Old style. A counter, stools, booths. Great coffee, so-so bagels, bad service. Michelle and Larry in a booth. Larry adding sugar to his java.

Michelle slides her cellphone across the table, displaying a freeze frame of the guy in the limo.

LARRY

Kinda familiar...but I can't put a name to him.

MICHELLE

How about I put some names to you?

(beat)

Peter Bunting.

LARRY

Bunting Industries. Specializes in real time intelligence analysis.

MICHELLE

Edgar Roy.

LARRY

(falters)

Can't talk to you about him. It's classified.

MICHELLE

You still in love with me, Larry?

LARRY

Yeah. You?

MICHELLE

No.

(beat)

Sorry I have to do this...

She holds up her phone, displaying a phone number.

LARRY

You wouldn't.

MICHELLE

Having a gambling problem makes you vulnerable to blackmail. NSA doesn't like their people being vulnerable to blackmail, does it, Larry.

Larry sighs, resigned to the moment.

LARRY

Edgar Roy's a freak. Bunting built a data center... dozens of satellite feeds, internet, military net, cable news, Al Jazeera, social networks, twitter... and Edgar Roy would calmly sit there in front of this - god-damn wall - absorbing and analyzing everything in real time. Satellite coordinates, tracking information, dates, times...you had to see it to believe it.

(MORE)

LARRY (CONT'D)

(beat)

So overnight, Bunting's a hero. And Edgar Roy's a national freakin' treasure.

(beat)

Then bam! - he gets caught burying bodies in his barn. Bunting had spent hundreds of millions of dollars of public money and all he had to show for it was a high tech data center that no one can access.

MICHELLE

Why?

LARRY

Every time he logged off, Edgar Roy changed the start-up sequence. They can power the system up, but they can't stream the data, let alone figure out how to interpret it.

MICHELLE

You think he killed those men?

LARRY

I think anything's possible.

(beat)

We done?

MICHELLE

Soon as you give me the address for the data center.

LARRY

Absolutely not.

Michelle toys with her phone.

Off Larry's resignation...

INT. SEAN'S HOUSE - NIGHT

Ted Bergin's files are spread across the floor. Megan is at the desktop, Sean standing over her as they trawl for information about Peter Bunting. The coded page is on the desk beside them.

SEAN

...Okay, try a news search.

MEGAN

His name or Bunting Industries?

SEAN

Both. Not for the last week - make it the last month.

MEGAN

Nothing.

SEAN

Probably using a privacy protocol - any time his name appears on the internet, it's flagged. He gets to allow the reference or delete it.

MEGAN

So we're not going to find out anything more about him?

SEAN

(to himself)

Not him. But maybe her...

(beat)

Shut your eyes.

Megan shuts her eyes. Sean lens over, types in a web address.

MEGAN

What don't you want me to see?

SEAN

Something from the old days I can still access. Work roster. Let's see where twinkle-toes Taylor is working tomorrow.

MEGAN

Who?

SEAN

Eyes shut! Member of Ellen Foster's protective detail...

(reacts)

Well would you look at that...

Megan opens her eyes.

SEAN (CONT'D)

Senate Intelligence Committee hearing tomorrow involving Bunting Industries. Madame Foster is due to give evidence. At stake is a multi-billion dollar defense contract. Bunting's main rival for the contract is ... Mason Quantrell.

MEGAN

Never heard of him. You want coffee?

SEAN

Sure.

Megan heads for the kitchen. Sean types.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Mason...Quantrell...

On the screen, a photo of MASON QUANTRELL appears alongside a profile. It's the guy from the limo.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Gotcha.

CRASH! From the kitchen. Sean looks up.

SEAN (CONT'D)
You okay?
(no answer)
Megan?

Silence. Sean opens the desk drawer, takes out his SIG.
Crosses to the kitchen door.

INT. SEAN'S HOUSE - KITCHEN - NIGHT

Megan is laying motionless on the floor. The back door is ajar. Sean quarters the room. Nothing. He pauses by Megan, checks her pulse, then moves cautiously towards the back door.

Suddenly he senses a movement behind him, begins to turn - too late - WHACK! as a heavy object cracks across his head.

Sean is out to it before he hits the floor.

And off Sean, unconscious...

END ACT THREE

ACT FOUR

FADE IN:

INT. SEAN'S HOUSE - NIGHT

Michelle is seeing out two PARAMEDICS.

MICHELLE
I'll make sure they do. Goodnight.

She closes the door after them, turns back into the living room. Sean and Megan are sitting on the sofa, nursing their injuries. Megan has a small butterfly clip high on her forehead.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
Get a look at him?

MEGAN
He was big... that's all I saw.

SEAN
That's more than I saw.

MICHELLE Entry?

SEAN Back door.

MEGAN
My fault. I got wood for the fire, didn't lock it.

Sean crosses to the fire.

MICHELLE
Anything missing?

SEAN
The page I copied from Ted's whiteboard. It was on the desk.

MEGAN
You think it could have been him?
Edgar Roy?

MICHELLE Maybe.

SEAN Maybe not.
(indicates the computer)
Guy in the limo was Mason Quantrell.

Michelle crosses to the computer.

SEAN (CONT'D)

He and Bunting are competing for the same government defense contract.

MICHELLE

Might explain why Bunting didn't want to get in the limo with him.

Sean gazes at the fire for a long moment, then looks across at his SIG on the table, pensive. Not lost on Michelle.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)

You okay?

SEAN

Yeah.

Michelle isn't so sure, lets it slide.

SEAN (CONT'D)

Your guy know anything?

MICHELLE

Bunting spent a fortune building a high tech data center. Edgar Roy would sit in front of banks of LCD screens, floor to ceiling, all streaming live data. And he'd interpret it. Sounds like he took intel analysis to a totally new level.

(beat)

The guys who designed it called it The Wall.

Sean looks up.

SEAN

The wall?

MICHELLE

Hundreds of feeds. Spy satellites, cable news, social networks. You name it.

SEAN

Spy satellites...

(looks at Michelle)

Satellite data can be reduced to strings of numbers and letters. Position, trajectory, angle, time, date - and god knows what else.

MICHELLE

You think that's what was on the whiteboard?

SEAN

I think Edgar Roy saw something he shouldn't have seen.

(looks to Michelle)

And I think I just figured out where we can find him.

MEGAN

You're not going to leave me here, are you?

MICHELLE

We'll get the cops back -

SEAN

You should come with us -

*
*

They exchange a look. Michelle surprised, Sean inscrutable.

Off Megan, looking from one to the other...

EXT. DATA CENTER - NIGHT

The Landcruiser rolls to a stop outside an ugly three storey building. A SECURITY GUARD snoozes behind the desk in the foyer.

SEAN

Really? You sure this is the right address?

MICHELLE

What? You think they'd advertise?

Megan leans forward between the two front seats. Sean won.

MEGAN

It looks deserted.

MICHELLE

Hasn't operated since Edgar Roy was arrested. He's the only one who knows how to access The Wall.

MEGAN

You're going to try to break-in?

SEAN

Not break-in. Walk-in. Edgar Roy left my business card where it could be found. He knew the FBI would show me because of the number on the back.

(beat)

He wanted me to see it.

MEGAN

So what is it?

SEAN

Our key in.

EXT. DATA CENTER - BACK OF BUILDING - NIGHT

CLOSE on Sean entering a seven digit number into a KEYPAD at a side entrance. He hesitates as he gets to the last digit.

SEAN
Was the last number a one or a seven?

MICHELLE
A seven...?

Sean's finger hovers over the seven, then he hits the one. A red light on the keypad flicks to green and the door buzzes.

SEAN
I win.

Michelle rolls her eyes, pulls the door open.

MICHELLE
(to Megan)
Stay behind us.

Megan nods and they enter the building.

INT. DATA CENTER - CORRIDOR - NIGHT

The interior is in stark contrast to the exterior. It's ultra-modern, all white walls, stainless steel and glass. And it's empty. They walk cautiously down one corridor, turn into a second. Sean suddenly holds up his hand. They all stop.

SEAN Motion sensors.

He and Michelle stare at the sensors on the ceiling.

MICHELLE
No diode. They're turned off.

They continue on down the corridor to a plate glass door with another numeric pad entry. Sean begins punching in the number.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
Why turn them off?

A menacing growl from behind them. They all freeze.

SEAN
That could be a reason...

A quick look over their shoulder reveals two Guard Dogs at the end of the corridor. The dogs begin to run. Sean punches in the last numeral. The door slides open.

They all scramble through, Sean slamming his hand on the oversized button to close the door. It slides shut just as the dogs skid to a stop on the other side, snapping and barking. Only we can't hear a thing.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Cool. Sound proof.

INT. DATA CENTER - STAIRS - NIGHT

They climb a flight of stairs, reach a locked steel door with a traditional lock. Sean shoots Michelle a look.

Michelle takes two bobby pins from Megan's hair, picks the lock.

INT. THE WALL - NIGHT

The door opens into a cavernous room. One entire wall, two storeys high, is fitted with dozens of screens. On the opposite side of the room is an operations area with a dozen computer stations. In the middle of the room is an oversized leather chair. Fitted into each armrest is a keyboard and numeric pad.

SEAN
The wall.
(off Michelle's look)
Only words Edgar Roy spoke when I went to see him. I thought he was referring to the security cameras on the prison wall. I'd forgotten about it until you started describing this place...

There's a noise behind them and they both quickly draw their weapons. A gasp from Megan as a giant figure steps from the shadows... Edgar Roy.

Sean lowers his SIG, puts it on a table, showing Edgar Roy he's now unarmed. Michelle keeps her SIG aimed squarely at Roy chest.

SEAN (CONT'D)
You could have warned me about the dogs.

EDGAR
Sorry. Why did you take so long?

SEAN
Not as smart as you, Edgar.
(beat)
You know it would have been easier if you'd called me.

EDGAR
FBI is monitoring your phone.
(to Michelle)
And yours.

MICHELLE
(lowers her SIG) Seriously?

EDGAR
The last time Ted came to see me, I told him how he could prove I didn't kill those men. He brought his micro-cassette-recorder.

MICHELLE
I saw it at his house. No cassette tape though...

MEGAN
FBI must have taken it.

MICHELLE
Or his killer.

SEAN
You gave Ted those strings of numbers and letters verbally?

Edgar just stares at him like he's an idiot.

MICHELLE
You can still remember them, right?

He gives Michelle the same look. Then he sits in the leather chair, begins typing. Sean, Michelle and Megan watch in mounting awe as 'The Wall' comes to life... dozens of screens, data streaming from a myriad of sources, some with sound, music, voices - a digital window on the world.

As they watch, mesmerized by the sheer volume of data, Edgar lowers the sound.

Tracking information and satellite data scrolls rapidly up one side of the wall, as satellite imagery of the earth is digitally rewound, a calendar spinning backwards, counting back six weeks until it stops on a date: 05-18-12. The images on The Wall are replaced by a single, oblique satellite image of farm buildings in West Virginia.

EDGAR
This is when it happened.

MICHELLE
That's your farm?

EDGAR

Yes.

SEAN

The date's wrong - this is a week before you were arrested.

EDGAR

When I was in prison, I replayed in my head, every image I'd seen... until I came to this one.

MICHELLE

Why didn't you react when you first saw it?

EDGAR

Data is nothing without context.

On the screen, two SUVs drive up to the farm buildings. Several FIGURES get out, scout the area.

EDGAR (CONT'D)

It was a Friday. Temperature was seventy-two degrees, relative humidity thirty seven percent, dew point forty four, I got to work seven minutes early. While I was here, they were on my farm.

On the screen, the figures begin unloading what appear to be body bags from the SUVs and taking them into the barn.

EDGAR (CONT'D)

Eight days later I found the ground had been disturbed in the barn. I got a shovel and had just uncovered the first body when the police came.

SEAN

Who controls this satellite, Edgar?

EDGAR

Q-Sat-one-three-nine-four, launched October eleven, two-thousand-seven, built and operated by Q-Tech, publicly listed company, principal shareholder Mason Quantrell.

SEAN

What if Bunting's 'Wall' was putting Quantrell's intel gathering network out of business? He would have known Edgar was the key. No Edgar, no wall.

MICHELLE

Killing him would have been too obvious.

SEAN

But having him locked up for murder...
(a thought)
Do you know who tasked the satellite to be over your farm?

Edgar types. Half the screen rapidly scrolls through a series of authorization documents, until it stops on one document.

EDGAR

Classified Authorization Hotel Oscar one three Delta, authorizing officer - Foster, Ellen, Assistant Director.

SEAN

Foster and Quantrell are in this together. They get rid of the opposition, Quantrell wins this new multi-billion dollar contract and Foster gets a multi million dollar kick-back.

MICHELLE

Sounds about right for Washington.
(beat)
They used the satellite to watch until you went into the barn. Then they tipped off the cops.
(to Sean)
Want to guess why they recorded it?

SEAN

The only way for them to guarantee the deal. His satellite, her authorization. If one goes down, they both go down.

MEGAN

Edgar, can you zoom in on their faces?

Edgar's fingers fly across the keyboard.

On The Wall, the faces of several figures come into focus. Edgar closes in on one figure in particular. The figure glances skyward and Edgar freezes the frame. It's Megan.

MEGAN (CONT'D)

That's what I was afraid of...

She snatches up Sean's SIG, still on the desk where he put it down. Levels it at Michelle and Sean.

SEAN
Guess you think I screwed up...

MICHELLE
Thought had crossed my mind.

SEAN
When I was at the fire, I found a corner of the white board page. Whoever attacked us threw it in the fire. Which got me wondering - why? (beat)
Why not just grab it and run? Unless you couldn't run because it would've blown your cover. Wouldn't it Megan?

MICHELLE
Explains why Ted stopped, rolled down the window. He stopped for you. Once you killed Ted, you knew you couldn't risk that Hilary knew something...

SEAN
You working for Quantrell or Foster?

MEGAN
Foster, not that knowing will make any difference to you.

SEAN
On the contrary...

Sean dumps a handful of rounds onto the table.

SEAN (CONT'D)
You don't think I'd be that careless, do you Megan? I just wanted confirmation it was you.

Megan falters, glances quickly at the SIG - and it's all Michelle needs. She moves with lightning speed, grabs at the gun as Megan pulls the trigger - BAM! BAM! BAM! Michelle puts her down, knocking her out cold.

MICHELLE
Not loaded, huh?

Sean trying to figure it out. Michelle pulls out her cellphone.

MICHELLE (CONT'D)
You got Murdock's number?

SEAN Sure -

He stops, looks at The Wall.

SEAN (CONT'D)
Edgar, this thing get C-span?

And off Edgar looking at him curiously...

INT. SENATE HEARING ROOM - DAY

The committee chairman, SENATOR HASKELL, bangs his gavel, bringing the room to order. Peter Bunting is in the hot seat, giving his testimony. Foster and Quantrell sitting behind him.

SENATOR HASKELL
Could you please answer the question,
Mister Bunting?

BUNTING
Senator, Edgar Roy's psychological evaluations gave no indication that he was -

He stops as all the screens in the room lose picture, to be replaced a moment later by satellite footage from Edgar's farm.

SENATOR HASKELL
Looks like we're having a meltdown of our own -

BUNTING
That's satellite imagery of Edgar Roy's farm...I've been there...

Quantrell and Foster both react.

SENATOR HASKELL
What are you saying Mister Bunting?
If you're behind this -

BUNTING
I assure you Senator, I'm as surprised as you are... This is a Q-Tech satellite feed - one of Mister Quantrell's... which is leased to Homeland Security...

FEMALE SENATOR
Oh my god...are those bodies?

A gasp ripples through the audience. Foster and Quantrell are on their feet and heading for the exits when Agents Murdock and Carter block their escape.

INT. DATA CENTER - DAY

Sean, Michelle and Roy watch the hearing room action on The Wall. Mayhem breaks out as Quantrell and Foster are arrested.

EDGAR
You think Ted's watching?

SEAN
I'm sure he is Edgar.

EDGAR Good.

And off The Wall...

EXT. CEMETERY - DAY

WIDE on a funeral service. Ted Bergin's funeral. Among the crowd of mourners, Sean, Michelle, Kelly Paul, Agent Murdock and standing head and shoulders over them all, Edgar. The services ends. The mourners begin to disperse.

EDGAR
Who were the men in my barn?

SEAN
They were homeless, Edgar. Flown in from a half a dozen different cities. They haven't been identified.

EDGAR
I'm going to pull down the barn and plant an orchard.

MICHELLE
We could always use some help with our book-keeping if you're interested...

EDGAR Maybe.

KELLY
Thank you for what you've done.

And she holds out a single dollar note to Sean. A beat, then he takes it, smiles. Edgar and Kelly move away.

MICHELLE
A dollar?

SEAN
Our retainer.

MICHELLE
Fifty cents each? That's it?

SEAN
Closer to thirty cents after taxes.

Michelle shakes her head, turns away. Sean falls in beside her.

SEAN (CONT'D)

The Agency is burying it, but Megan Riley was one of theirs. Briefly. They scrubbed her out. Psychologically unsuitable.

MICHELLE

Foster didn't seem to care.

SEAN

She was good. Still haven't figured out how she loaded my SIG...

MICHELLE

She didn't. I did.

SEAN

You - what?

MICHELLE

I checked it before we left. It was unloaded, so I put in a new clip. What good is an unloaded gun to anyone?

SEAN

You could have got us killed! It was part of my plan!

MICHELLE

That was a plan?

SEAN

Well at least I had a plan! Did you have a plan?

MICHELLE

No plan.

SEAN

Exactly.

MICHELLE

I like to improvise.

SEAN

How about improvising that ten bucks you owe me?

And off their banter we...

END PILOT EPISODE